

TO: Whom It May Concern

FROM: Tom Vreeland

RE: Prop 65

DATE: January 21, 2019

The State of California enacted Proposition 65 (Prop 65) related to products and possible hazardous elements exposure. Prop 65 requires clear warning to individuals prior to contacting anything which is potentially harmful to health for products sold within California.

The following warning is being added to an existing packaging label applied to all AP Tech products:

Warning

This product can expose you to chemicals including lead, which are known to the State of California to cause cancer and birth defects or other reproductive harm. For more information go to www.P65Warnings.ca.gov

The current label cautions one to read installation and operating instructions, which are posted online, prior to installing or using the device. The label is on plastic bag packaging.

Prop 65 requires warning regardless of how remote the risk of exposure. We are noting lead as an example of exposure because we utilize brass parts which contain some percentage of lead. There are other such exposure risks with AP Tech products.